

Randolph 4-H – Nicole Blauvelt

On November 15, 2008 our 4-H youth collected can goods for the Medina food bank, and then delivered everything to the Southwest Corn Maize in Hondo. This is our 4th year to donate to the food bank, the box gets bigger every year they are most grateful for everything we bring.

All the youth than enjoyed a picnic lunch before heading into the first phase of the maize, some choose to use the clues provided by the maize personal while others choose to just get lost and hope for the best. This year's maize was dedicated to Americas Farmers who work 24/7 with no holidays, we were asked to keep them in our thoughts whenever we sit down at the meal table, I don't think our youth realized how agriculture touches their everyday lives, this was a wonderful learning experience. Of course they are looking forward to next fall with another trip to the South West Corn Maize.
